MOONLIGHT AND ROSES

Two of the 70 couples attending the sophomore and freshman Moonlight and Roses dance Feb. 16, stop to receive their bids before entering the decorated rec hall for the festivities.

Council Chooses Pregelj NFCCS Representative

By BUEL ADAMS

The vacant seat on the Student Council was filled Feb. 20 with the election of Vladimir "Miro" Pregelj as NFCCS representative and ninth Council member. Pregelj had previously resigned his position under the old constitution but was appointed pro tem delegate until the election. Pregelj defeated Joe Peters in the balloting, 6-2, at the joint Council-Inter Club Committee meeting.

Forty Hours Opens On Collegeville Campus

By JOHN HENTSCHEL

This coming week-end, Feb. 29th to March 2, the Forty Hours Devotion by the student body will be held. It is a closed week end and classes will be held as usual.

Friday morning the devotion will be opened with Mass at 6:45, after which there will be a procession with the Blessed Sacrament around the Chapel. During the day different halls or groups will have assigned adoration periods of one half hour each. If a class interferes with the scheduled time, the adoration period can be made up by the student at his convenience. Evening services will consist of the rosary at 6:30, followed by the Seven Offerings of the Precious Blood, and a sermon. Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament will conclude the day of prayer. Exercises for Saturday will follow the same schedule as those of Friday, the Mass being offered for peace.

On Sunday morning after the 9:30 Mass the Solemn closing of the devotion will consist of the litany and procession of the Blessed Sacrament.

Throughout the week end groups will be assigned for adoration periods so that continuous prayer, interrupted only during the night, will be offered. The devotion, in honor of Our Lord in the Blessed Sacrament, is richly endowed with graces and indulgences and is held yearly in all parishes.

Aside from this voting, the chief business of the meeting was the official presentation of a $2,000 check, representing the Student Council Fee paid at the beginning of the semester by all students, to the Council by Father Otte.

Fund Regulations Read

Father Koller next read and discussed the regulations for the administration of the fund. Among the points stressed was the fact that no individual club could receive money for its own purposes and that all expenditures had to be properly authorized. A treasurer's report is to be made every month and printed in STUFF. The first such report is in this issue.

The rest of the meeting was devoted to reports of committees and appointment of others to look into details. Ray Pfriem reported that the Moonlight and Roses dance had incurred a deficit of $9.07; the freshmen and sophomores received the Council's commendation for their handling of the dance.

Donor Program Investigated

Phil Gilbert was chosen to investigate the possibilities of having the Red Cross blood donor service on campus. Miro Pregelj and his constitutional committee, which includes the class presidents, were asked to draw up a list of amendments to iron out kinks still in the document. The final reports were made by John Onohan, who informed the Council that the practice football field will be iced down next winter for the convenience of St. Joe's skaters. In addition, Onohan asked the group to remind the students that there is a 20c charge for the bus service from the Rensselaer train station.

Seventy Couples Attend Rec Hall Pre-Lenten Dance

Seventy couples were entertained Feb. 16 by Paul Gates and his orchestra at the first sophomore-freshman pre-Lenten dance. A "Moonlight and Roses" theme was carried out in decorations and bids, and frequent renditions of the old-time favorite accentuated the mood.

Roses and Trellises

According to Ray Pfriem, sophomore president and co-chairman of the affair along with freshman head John Gorman, much credit should go to the decoration chairman, George Kuhn and Jim Sloan, for their excellent work in endowing the rec hall with moonlight-and-roses atmosphere.

Intertwined white and red roses, a golden moon over the bandstand, and trellises throughout the hall were features of this committee's work. Individual roses were given with the bid to each girl.

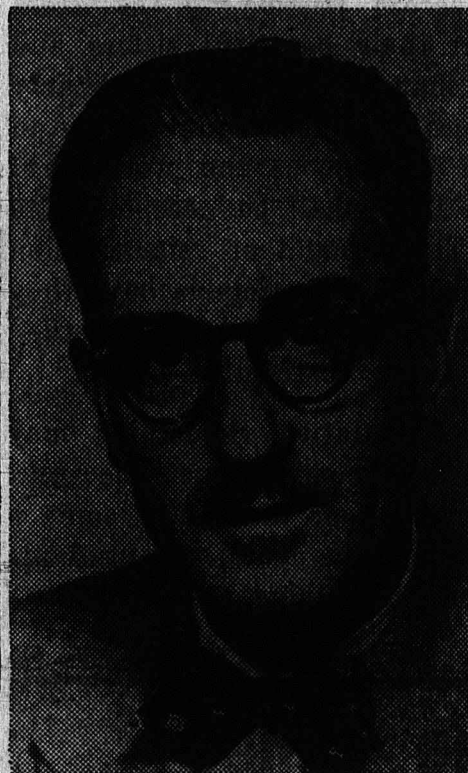

Refreshments Served

Refreshments, under Brother John's personal care, were served at the midnight conclusion of the dance. Hosts for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Gene Fetter and Mr. and Mrs. James Beane.

Christopher Movement Subject Of Talk by William H. Mooring

By BILL FEELY

Tomorrow evening at 8:00 P. M. the first student convocation of the current semester will bring to St. Joe, as a guest speaker, William H. Mooring, an eminent authority on motion pictures. His topic will be "A Hollywood Star Named Christopher," a candid and highly personalized report upon the effects and potentialities of the Christopher movement, and its immediate application in the Hollywood movie business.

Mr. William H. Mooring, noted authority on movies, who speaks here tomorrow night.

For the past 28 years Mr. Mooring has been continuously associated with motion pictures in several capacities. He is widely recognized in both Europe and the United States as an authority on the films, and is one of the greatest contributors to the field of film journalism.

Works on Winning Film

A native of Great Britain, Mr. Mooring became a convert to Catholicism 11 years ago. He first came to Hollywood in 1932 at the invitation of the president of Fox Studios, and worked on the Academy-award-winning film, "Cavalcade." Returning to his native land in 1933, he was made assistant production manager of British International Picture Studios. He resigned this post and came back to the United States.

As Hollywood correspondent for a syndicate of British newspapers, he has since remained in Hollywood, maintaining contact with foreign films by periodical trips to Europe.

Movie Columnist

In 1943, after his conversion, Mr. Mooring was invited by Monsignor Thomas J. McCarthy to formulate an authentic Hollywood service of film news and reviews suitable for the Catholic press. His column, "Hollywood in Focus," which includes a commentary and critical evaluation of all new movies, now appears in leading Catholic publications throughout the United States, Canada, and parts of Europe.

Mr. Mooring pursues the policy of "getting the facts and sticking to them." His work has won for him a large number of readers as well as a personal reputation for integrity, expressed in a good-humored but lively defense of worthwhile principles in the public exhibition of motion pictures.

Three Chief Roles Cast for Play; 'Othello' Rehearsals Commence

By JIM PLATE

The three chief roles in the forthcoming Columbian Players' production, "Othello," have been selected and the majority of the remaining leads and assisting parts have been cast. Most of the technical help has also been assigned as the CP's greatest effort swings into motion.

The title role will be handled by director Mr. Ralph Cappuccilli. Besides displaying his ability in the directing field, Mr. Cappuccilli has won considerable renown as an actor, both while a student here and while holding his position as leader of the group. His most recent appearance was in "Emperor Jones," presented in 1950.

Mrs. O'Brien Lead

Playing opposite Mr. Cappuccilli, as Desdemona, will be Mrs. Geri O'Brien, wife of Mr. Jack O'Brien, '51. Mrs. O'Brien, while appearing on many Mid-West stages, has been repeatedly accepted with enthusiasm by her audiences.

Her stage experience and natural ability should prove to be a stimulus to the Shakespearean tragedy. Mr. O'Brien is also remembered for his stellar acting in "Emperor Jones" and many other plays.

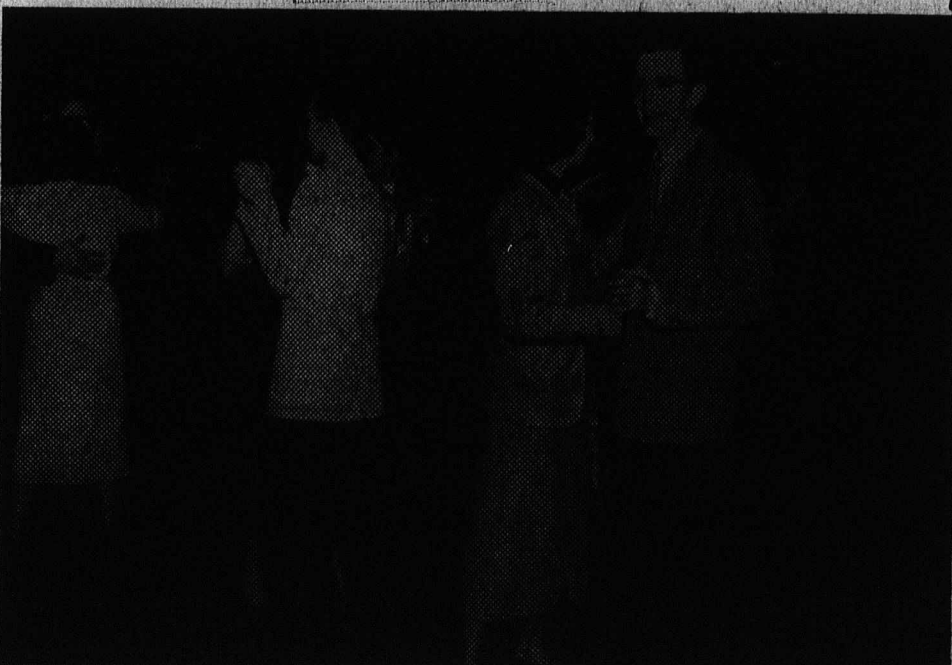

Konkel Is Villain

The role of Iago, villain of the piece, will be handled by Joseph Konkel. Joe has appeared consistently on the Collegeville stage in his three years as a Columbian Player. His brilliant portrayal of the title role in last semester's "The Man Who Came to Dinner" received wide acclaim. "Othello" should give him the chance to run the gamut of his thespian abilities.

Production on "Othello" officially commenced Feb. 11. The first week saw discussions on the play, headed by Messrs. Druse, Sanderlin, and Cappuccilli, conducted in the rec hall. Continuous rehearsals, sectioned according to scenes and acts, have also begun and are scheduled from now until opening night sometime in May.

DANCING TIME

Part of the crowd attending the Feb. 8 dance with St. Xavier's College. It was the first mixer of the semester.

The Eighth Wonder

With great expectations (all credit to Mr. Dickens), we look forward to the day when Collegeville, Ind., will take its place among the highlights of a traveler's tour. "See Naples and die," we are told. "Don't miss the seven wonders of the world." "By all means visit Washington—and Paris—and Hawaii—and Rome" . . . and on and on. But perhaps someday to this impressive list will be added the cafeteria at St. Joseph's College.

"One must kiss the stone at Blarney Castle," they will say. "Yes, and surely no one who is worth knowing would miss a Mardi Gras in New Orleans."

"Of course, and everyone should be a member of the Shellbacks."

"Ah, indeed,—but, my dear, have you ever been so warmly welcomed as you were at the Collegeville cafeteria? Those tinkling glasses play a melody on one's heart! One feels that at last—at last he has found his destiny; his true worth has at last been realized and fittingly acclaimed!"

We can picture it now. Young men will vie in marvelous tests of acumen just for the privilege of attending this world-famous institute of learning. Oh, the desire for knowledge will be no greater in the day to come, but think of the wonderful opportunities here for impressing one's friends and relatives! Aged mothers will be wheeled into the cafeteria to receive one last fully-merited ovation before passing to the great beyond. Students will insist that their beautiful sisters and cousins be allowed at least one chance to receive the hearty tinkles from the assembled judges of pulchritude . . . And professors! Professors renowned throughout the world will eagerly await the moment when they shall be accepted into the fold of the college faculty. The thought of remuneration will be irrelevant; it is the acclaim of the cafeteria boys they will crave! Oh, not just for themselves, understand, for they want their friends to enjoy this freely distributed honor.

Of course, this is just idle speculation. Something may happen to prevent our prophecy from coming true. The tinklers' arms may wear off from overuse or there may come a shortage of "tinkable" objects. Or, then again, the students may realize the childishness of the whole thing. . . —EFB.

Tale of the Times

Once upon a time there was a college newspaper called THINGS. Now, the editor of THINGS was a mean ol' cuss who would always browbeat his minions and force them to write editorials for him because he was also a lazy ol' cuss and besides couldn't write worth a darn.

So, one day the mean ol' editor unchained one of his reporters from his one-room dungeon with the chintz drapes and said to him, "Write an editorial on Lent."

"Oh, no," screamed the quivering minion, "This is a fate worse than death. No student reads editorials on Lent except crazy people and the people who write them and sometimes it's hard to tell these two apart!"

"Silence!" glowered the mean ol' editor, throwing him a dirty look, which the quivering minion somehow managed to avoid. "I realize the difficulty of your task; that is why I did not do it myself. I know you cannot tell students they should give up something for Lent or that they should make other little sacrifices, for they will only ignore you. They do not seem to be impressed with what Lent actually is."

"No, they do not," the minion had courage to say, but, at another glance, subsided into a state of babbling incoherence.

"The relatively few who do a little extra penance during Lent know that they are doing the right thing and that they will eventually be rewarded for it."

"And it is just such a little something extra, too. Going to week-day Mass more often, giving up some small delight, attending the evening devotions. It doesn't put anybody out, yet there are people who will not give God even that little bit more during Lent."

"Yes," the now-not-so-mean editor sighed, "that is the way with this queer world. But we must think of some method of even getting students to read an editorial on Lent."

Suddenly the editor began to smile. It was the first time in his life that he had tried to smile and the sight was world-shaking, like watching the birth of a new volcano.

"I think," he said, "I know how to interest students in reading such an editorial. Let's see. How about starting out, 'Once upon a time there was a college newspaper called THINGS. . .'" —BTA.

Expert Tackles Other Problems Of Adjustment

By JIM PLATE

FLASH . . . Word has reached us that here on our own campus, right under our own noses . . . someone is unhappy. Immediately upon arrival of this news, we investigated. Results are thus: This poor lad was maladjusted due most probably to previous environmental circumstances. He came from a . . . home. He was so unfortunate as to have to endure long tiring nights of dating women, laughing, having fun—and then he came to St. Joe. The poor dog. He had been so drugged with these ridiculous means of entertainment that he now feels lacking in social prestige, lacking in means of making himself content, lacking in all those things which a good St. Joe student always has lacked. STUFF immediately took the situation in hand. We pointed out to him all the means which we really do have to keep us happy. Things which would make any good red-blooded convict happy . . . He left.

Exchange System

Why he left, we'll never know. It was ever so carefully that we explained to him the wonderful exchange system which we operate with girls' schools in situations similar to ours. We told him that every once in a while we had girls freighted down for evenings of bliss at the rec hall. How, as soon as they arrived, they were ushered into the hall, the doors were slammed shut and locked until the end of the dance. We even told him that these activities ventured far into the depths of the night, for we always had until 9:45 before we had to return. Still he left.

The rec hall. We told him about that. How we had pool tables at the disposal of those who were miniature golf enthusiasts, shuffleboard for the athletes who wanted to get in shape for the discus throw. We explained that restrictions were so lenient that the only thing that we really had to keep in mind was that the authorities had spent $8,574.98 for concrete flooring. So would we PLEASE throw our used cigarette butts there and not dirty up the ash trays.

Official Identification

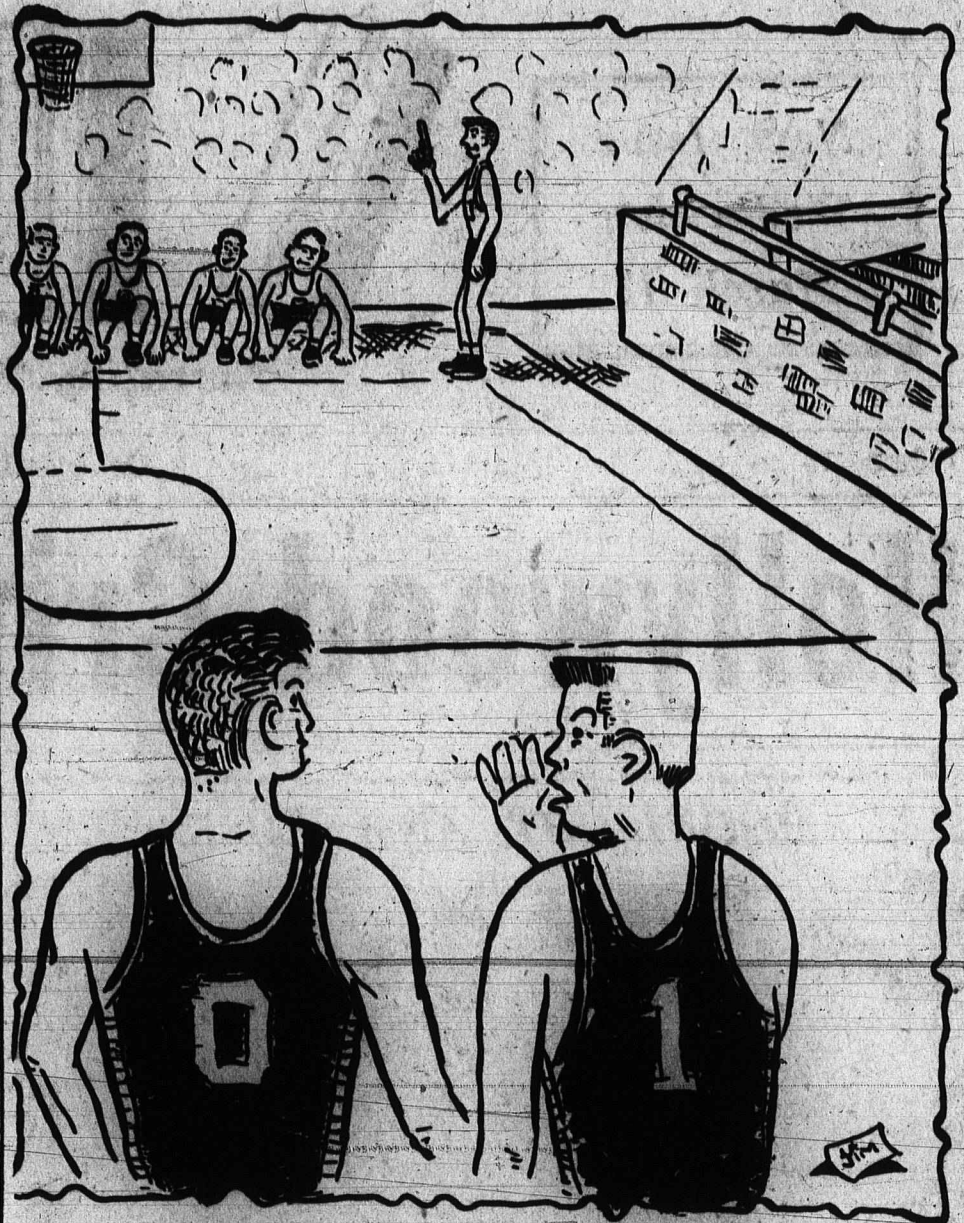

Still, he had a complaint to make. It was about those new identification cards. He said he didn't object to the principle of the thing, but did they have to tattoo a number across his chest. He just didn't understand.

He was perturbed (we'll never know why) at the news that Father Dean was fining the local airport authorities for leaving the beacon on past 9:45. The suit amounted to $13,692.75. That is "two-bits" times 54,769, or the number of times that he shrewdly observed the blamed thing shine in his window. Our patient didn't seem to realize that this is not only a waste of well-needed electrons, but it's not at all conducive to making us grow into Great Horned Owls.

In Capable Hands

We went further and explained to him all about our wonderful organizations. How, as a member of the Stumbling Players, he would be in the capable hands of Mr. Dolph Waxahachie, the famous star of stage. He said that he had joined the group for their next play, "Old Fellow," by Bill Quiverlance. But he wondered why his part had been so drastically cut to a mere walk-on. We explained that there naturally would be some slight deletions from the original. "Yes," he said, "but I play the lead." "Be thankful you aren't one of the minor characters then," we replied.

We then cagily gave him the inside story about the "advantages" of our renowned campus newspaper, telling him all the hidden secrets of the organization. We . . . WAIT! . . . just a minute, editor . . . down boy . . . but ed . . . ed! ed! . . . arrrgg.

"Watch it. I think they use a fast break."

champagne

By FRANK J. PAVALKO

A column that sends a toast to everyone because everyone IS news!

A FAREWELL TOAST to those who have been reading this column for the past years. This issue marks the last "pouring" of Champagne. It has been a lot of fun being with you and writing about you. A new column, with a new title, will replace this one. Ed Byrne will be its feature writer and we are sure you will enjoy the new presentation. In leaving, we would like to thank all of those fine people who have made news contributions to the column. Thanks also to Buel Adams, the Editor of Stuff, for his willing and capable cooperation.

SENIOR-ALUMNI BANQUET: The graduating class of 1952 will be initiated into the Alumni organization of St. Joseph's at a special banquet to be held at the Sheraton Hotel in Chicago on June the 7th. This is the first time in the history of the college that this will be done and it has met with enthusiastic approval.

SPRING FOOTBALL PRACTICE will open March 7th. Coach Gene Fetter is encouraging all students interested in playing football to "try out." Tryouts are open to everyone with or without high school experience. If you think you have anything on the ball now is your chance to show it!

WITH THE INITIATION OF THE NEW CONSTITUTION and the Student Council Fund, St. Joe can claim one of the most powerful Student Councils in the nation. The present set-up was drafted about four years ago and Champagne tips its glass to those early Council presidents, John Lucus, Chuck Barton and Joe McGrath, who were, after all, the first dreamers.

THE BEST TIP OF THE WEEK: All students who have term papers to write will be wise if they complete them before warm weather sets in. Seniors would do well to have these completed by the end of March.

SO LONG TO ALL FROM CHAMPAGNE! AND FOR THE LAST TIME, GOOD LUCK, GOD BLESS YOU, AND LOVE THIS COLLEGE!

INTRAMURALS

As the close of the second round approaches in the I-M basketball competition, the leading teams in the three leagues are beginning to eye that extramural trip to Davenport. The three winners in the first and second round of competition will meet in a playoff this week to determine which team will represent St. Joe at the meet.

The Sharpshooters, in the Midwest League, are determined to keep their winning streak alive and cop the championship. Led by Ed Swanson and George Riggs, the Sharpshooters are defending an undefeated record in their league. The National league winners will probably be decided when the Shooting Stars meet the Deversures. It may prove to be the best game of the season when George Kalafut and Leo Lammers lead their Stars against the Surges of Larry Schmit and Jim Etter. Leading the American league are the Basketeers under George Smolar and Tom Schnieders. Having scored over 100 points three times already, the Basketeers will be tough competition in the playoffs.

The double elimination volleyball tournament, originally scheduled to begin late this week, has been postponed because of the high school sectional tournament to be held in our gym. The eight teams formed for the tournament will begin their games on March 3. The ping pong tournament will begin tomorrow as scheduled.

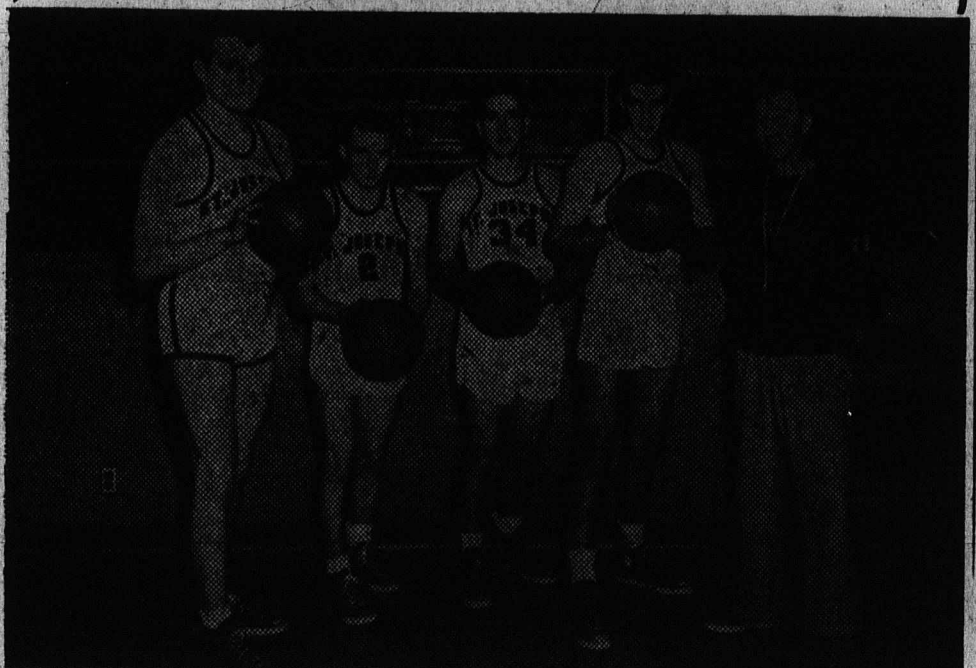

In two rounds of play, Bill Ferguson and Norb Hummel's Hangers have not lost a meet in the shuffleboard conflict. With this record, the Hangers are certain winners in their league.

The Kingpins and Ron Hospodka's Spares are tied for first place in I-M bowling. The bowlers will hold their playoff in two weeks. The playoff will be wide open, with the top four positions in the league all tied.

Jack Corbett, captain of the Kingpins, bowled the highest series last week with a 504 tally for three games. The high average is still claimed by Archie Fredeman with a 160.

The Pumas bowling squad met Loyola in a five game match at the Maple Lanes Alleys Sunday. Dan Kopp, Vince Baldassari, Jack Corbett, Lou White, and Bob Michalski were St. Joe's representatives. Although holding down the cellar in the Midwest Intramural Bowling Conference, St. Joe has faced much more experienced teams in its previous matches.

SENIOR CAGERS

Coach Dick Scharf bids farewell to four Puma seniors, Mike Kacmar, Jim Drake, Ed Schultheis, and Joe Kukoy, who made their last home appearance against Butler Monday.

First Baseball Call Issued by Beane

James Beane, '49, intramural athletic director at St. Joseph's since September, has been named head baseball coach following the resignation of Dick Scharf from that position, it was announced by the Rev. Edward Roof, athletic director.

Scharf will continue as head basketball coach and football backfield coach. He served as varsity baseball coach for five seasons and also coached in the high school department from 1940 until the school was discontinued in 1948.

Beane pitched for the Pumas before he left for military service in 1943 and has also had professional experience in the minor leagues.

Holder of the master's degree from Indiana University, Beane is also an instructor in the college's physical education department. He is a native of Evansville.

The new coach has issued a call for players, and outside practice will begin as soon as weather permits.

Following is the 1952 schedule. One game, at Chicago U., has yet to be arranged. Games with Ball State, Butler, Evansville, Indiana State, and Valparaiso are Indiana Collegiate Conference games. Nine of the 14 games will be played at home.

- Apr. 21—Chicago (H)
- Apr. 24—Ball State (A)
- Apr. 28—Wabash (H)
- Apr. 30—Valparaiso (H)
- May 2—Indiana State (A)
- May 5—Valparaiso (A)
- May 7—Ball State (H)
- May 9—Indiana State (H)
- May 10—Butler (2) (H)
- May 16—Evansville (2) (H)
- May 21—Wabash (A)

Road Trip Ends In Losses to Wabash, Butler

The St. Joe Pumas traveled to Crawfordsville Feb. 14 and absorbed an 83-60 defeat at the hands of Wabash. With four minutes left to play, and the Pumas down only nine points, 67-58, the Cavemen took advantage of Puma lapses and sank just about everything they threw at the basket.

The game started out evenly with the home team holding a two-point bulge at the end of the first period. Wabash increased its lead slightly during the second quarter and left the floor with a 34-29 advantage.

The Cavemen really began to hit in the third quarter and ran up a 59-45 edge with which to work the last ten minutes. At this point, the Pumas got hot and looked as though they might do some damage. But once within nine points, St. Joe cooled off and that was the ball game.

Butler 89, St. Joe 48

Butler's Bulldogs spotted the Pumas one quarter and then came roaring back in the next three to completely overwhelm St. Joe, 89-48, Feb. 16 in the Butler fieldhouse.

Leading 20-16 at the end of the first ten minutes, mainly on the strength of Chet Pilat's six fielders, the Pumas fell apart in the second period and came out with three points while the Bulldogs amassed 25.

Butler rolled merrily along, piling up 19 markers in the third quarter and 29 in the last to set themselves a new scoring record, surpassing their previous high of 88. While the Bulldogs chalked up 48 points in the last half, the Pumas picked up but 25.

Pilat was the bright spot of the game as he led both teams with 18 points. Ralph Meyer was next for St. Joe with six. Guard Jim Crosley led the Butler attack with 16 and forward Orvis Burd-sall had 14. The Bulldogs hit 46 per cent from the field, with the Pumas connecting on 30 per cent of their shots.

Puma Uprising Trips Evansville In Overtime

Dick Scharf's Pumas put on a typical last quarter rally to catch the Evansville Aces and tie the game 65-65 at the end of regulation time, and then went on to score a 73-68 overtime win, Feb. 11 in the fieldhouse. Two substitutes, Ralph Meyer and Don Merki, were the sparks of the Puma rally as they dumped in 18 and 16 points respectively.

The first quarter started out slowly as St. Joe hit only three fielders, but made seven of 11 free tosses to keep in the game, 17-13. Ray Bawel was the big gun for the Aces as he hit three fielders to give his team the four-point advantage.

Evansville, led by Keith Combs and Bawel, who connected for three baskets apiece, held their four-point margin at halftime as the Pumas still were cold from the field. St. Joe scored only eight baskets during the first 20 minutes of play, and were fortunate to leave the floor trailing only 33-29.

But in the third quarter the Pumas started to warm up as Center Don Merki poured through ten points and Willie Kellogg five. Although the score wasn't any closer, St. Joe's hitting from the field was a sign of things to come.

Starting the final ten minutes, the Aces still had a 53-48 edge, but then Dick Soich and Ralph Meyer went to work. They combined for a total of 13 points to send the Pumas out in front and it looked as if they were there to stay. But Keith Combs hit two quick fielders to send the game into the overtime period.

In the extra period, Meyer came through with two more baskets and Kellogg and Dwyer hit one each to sew up the game. Meyer, Merki, Soich, and Kellogg gave the Pumas balanced scoring while Combs led the Evansville attack with 15 points.

Forward Jack Dwyer poured through 22 points for a one-game high by a St. Joe player this year, but that was the lone bright spot in the game with the Ball State Cardinals as the Pumas dropped a 69-48 decision Saturday, Feb. 23, at Muncie.

The game was close throughout the first quarter as Dwyer dropped in two fielders and four free-throws in as many attempts to keep the Pumas within one point, 13-12. But the next ten minutes was a different story as forward John Cross ripped the nets with four baskets to power his team to a 35-21 halftime lead. During the first half, St. Joe made six field goals, with Dwyer getting half.

In the third quarter Dwyer and Cross traded three field goals apiece, but Dick Soich was the only other St. Joe man to score from the floor as the Pumas fell behind, 48-35.

In the last period, "Butch" Reutebuch came to Dwyer's rescue. They each scored five points, but Cardinal Jim Harris kept his team well in front as he garnered seven points on three baskets and a charity toss.

First Collegeville Co-Ed Enrolled Brave Newsie Interviews Same

By TOM SUESS

"The difficult we do at once; the impossible takes a little longer." It's the motto of the Army Engineers, but we could apply it in the present instance to our own college, for the "impossible" has finally happened: St. Joe has turned co-ed. The ratio is 461:1, to be sure, but if that one young lady is any representative of things to come, we have reason to be optimistic.

Her name, in case you haven't heard, is Mary Lou Worland, and she lives in Rensselaer. She is an attractive five-foot-five, has brown hair and eyes, is Catholic, and is neither married nor engaged. The rest of the story we think would prove more interesting if we let you hear from Mary Lou herself, via the question-and-answer method:

Graduates from I. U.

Q. Well, first, the most obvious question; how did you happen to come here, Mary Lou?

A. Well, I've attended college for four years already—first at Indiana University and then at Miami U., but I wanted to graduate with a double major, in both Home Economics and Language Arts, so as to better insure my future success as a teacher. To do so, I need to make up a few hours. Then I'll graduate in June, from Indiana. As to how I wound up here at St. Joe: you know, several girls have enrolled here in the past for private courses, and Professor Tonner's son, whom I know, suggested that I do the same thing. Then someone else suggested that I participate in the regular classes. So I said I'd talk it over with my family and friends.

Q. And what did they seem to think?

A. My folks told me to make my own decision, and most of my friends were more amused than anything else. They started nick-naming me "Nightingale," since they said I was sort of a Florence Nightingale-type pioneer.

Beginning Hard

Q. How about your own feelings?

A. Why, I thought it would be quite a new experience. But I'll admit I was quite dubious at first. The day of registration, when I walked into that cafeteria and saw that sea of male faces, I was about ready to turn tail and run!

Q. Now could you tell us a little more about yourself? You say you're going into teaching?

A. Yes, I spent last semester in practice-teaching at Rensselaer High School. I'd very much like to begin my full-time teaching there, if I could. It's a nice-sized school, and it's progressive—goes in a lot for instruction and help on the individual level, something in which I'm a very firm believer.

Q. I suppose you've lived all your life in Rensselaer, aside from your schooling?

A. Oh, no. My family and I lived for a year in Oak Park, Ill., during which time I attended Trinity Girls' High School in Chicago.

Trustee Speaks To Commerce Club

Mr. Garland Rathel, vice-president of the Continental Steel Corp., Kokomo, was the chief speaker at a meeting of the Commerce Club, Feb. 18. Mr. Rathel, a member of St. Joseph's Board of Lay Trustees, spoke on "What Industry Expects from College Graduates."

The speaker, who was introduced by the Rev. Joseph A. Otte, treasurer of the college, emphasized that many opportunities are open to the college graduate in fields of commerce. However, he pointed out, management definitely does not want the egotist, the quitter, or the habitual latecomer. Mr. Rathel also devoted part of his time to a discussion of the personal characteristics needed for a successful sales career.

We've also lived five years in Florida.

Travels Extensively

Q. How about traveling? Done much of that?

A. Yes, quite a bit—I've been all around this country and traveled in Europe, too.

Q. What were your most memorable experiences in Europe?

A. Seeing so many important people. I was lucky on two occasions: one was when I got some very good close-up shots of Queen Mary, as she was passing me, and the other, when I was able to speak personally with the Pope. Meeting him was an unforgettable experience.

Q. Outside of traveling, what are some of your other interests?

A. Oh, dancing, painting, most sports. And flying our family plane.

Q. And now just one last very important question, Mary Lou. How do you like St. Joe?

A. I'm very happy to be here, even for the short time that I plan to stay. And the students and faculty have all been very nice.

Ordinarily, we end such articles as this with a nice-sounding string of concluding platitudes. But with such a lovely "unsolicited testimonial" from Miss Worland, we think that they can be dispensed with. Suffice it to say that since her appearance on the Collegeville scene, speculations have run rampant as to possible future developments here at St. Joe. Could be that some of them are true?

New Carillons Ring

Beginning Feb. 12, students heard the Angelus being rung at 6 A. M., Noon, and 6 P. M. by a completely new set of chimes. Actually, no new bells have been installed, for the carillon bell system now in use is completely electronically timed and operated. The carillon bells were donated by the sister of the late Father Cyril Knue, former faculty member of Saint Joseph's. The total cost including installment was about $3,000.

The bells have a range of twenty-five notes and are arranged to be played in coordination with the chapel organ. They are an exact replica of the bells at the Catholic University of America, and similar to those at Saint Peter's Basilica in Rome.

Concert Planned

A second instrumental concert this year by the pupils of Professor Paul Tonner has been scheduled, it was announced recently.

With the week of May 5 tentatively chosen for the performance, Prof. Tonner's proteges will try to duplicate the success of their first concert in the College Theater in December. Highlights of the May program will be twin piano productions of Chopin, Beethoven, and Bohm numbers, with "The Ritual Fire Dance" as the special feature.

SOMETHING NEW

Something new has been added to the campus lately in the person of St. Joe's first co-ed, Mary Lou Worland, here seen being interviewed by STUFF reporter Tom Sueß.

Crusaders Hang 62-54 Defeat On Scharfmen

There was no joy in Pumasville Thursday night as Valparaiso's Crusaders handed the St. Joe five their third consecutive defeat, 62-54, in the field house. The loss virtually destroyed any hope for a share of the Indiana Collegiate Conference lead.

Pumas Lead

St. Joe barely kept its head above water in the first half, leading at the end of 20 minutes, 31-30. The Pumas opened strongly against the tall Valpomen, with Willie Kellogg sinking three quick long ones. Valpo soon switched one of their tallest men to Willie, however, and the diminutive guard did not have time to set himself for his specialty. Even this, however, did not prevent Kellogg from copping St. Joe scoring honors with 13 points.

After holding a 17-16 lead at the quarter, the Pumas ran the margin to five points late in the second stanza, only to see Valpo edge ahead by one. After another Crusader field goal, Chet Pilat's three-point play gave the Pumas that 31-30 halftime margin.

Valpo Controls Boards

In the last half, though, the Crusaders began to run away with the game. Their height and consequent control of the boards were too much for the Pumas, as Valpo led 44-39 at the third quarter and moved into a 15-point bulge with four minutes remaining in the final period. St. Joe led by Dick Soich and Jim Drake, closed fast, but time ran out with the numbers reading 62-54.

Following Kellogg in the scoring column were Pilat with 11 and Bernie Boff with 10. Center Don Spitz headed the Crusaders with 16 markers.
